WHO Launches Global Oral Health Status Report

The World Health Organization (WHO) recently launched its global oral health status report that provides a comprehensive picture of oral disease burden and highlights challenges and opportunities to accelerate progress towards universal coverage for oral health.

IADR's President-elect, Dr. Brain O'Connell provided comments on the impact of this report on oral health research during its launch.

The WHO Global oral health status report, executive summary and country profiles can be found here:

<https://www.who.int/team/noncommunicable-diseases/global-status-report-on-oral-health-2022>.

In addition, work is currently underway to develop regional report summaries for each of the WHO regions with plans to release by end of first quarter 2023. Additionally, the Global Oral Health Action Plan 2023-30 is currently being finalized following the public consultation that took place in August-September 2022. IADR has provided comments on this action plan during the public consultation period.

It is anticipated that the action plan will be published on the website by the end of December 2022, in anticipation of the WHO Executive Board EB152 meeting from January 30 – February 7, 2023. IADR is thrilled to see so much traction for oral health globally!

Expression of Interest: National Oral Health Research Strategy

The Canadian Institutes of Health Research's (CIHR) Institute of Musculoskeletal Health and Arthritis (IMHA) is developing a National Oral Health Research Strategy and would like to engage members of the research community.

IMHA will provide a range of options for members of the oral health research community to contribute to that Strategy. One of those options will be an in-person meeting in Ottawa on Wednesday, March 29, 2023. The goal of that meeting will be for various interested parties to identify themselves, highlight their areas of interest and expertise and meet each other. The full suite of engagement opportunities is not yet developed and will be created during 2023. We envisage that the National Oral Health Research Strategy will take 12-18 months to develop. It will be a living strategy and it will be shaped by the oral health research community.

If you are interested in contributing to the National Oral Health Research Strategy there are several options for you to do so as follows:

1. Email the CIHR-IMHA inbox to ensure you are on the mailing list for the strategy.
2. Suggest names of individuals you feel would be essential in developing a National Oral Health Research Strategy by emailing the CIHR-IMHA inbox.
3. If you are interested in attending the in-person event in March 2023, please submit an expression of interest outlining your desire to be selected.

Submission deadline: January 10, 2023

Please note that the event will be by invitation only
